Cooperative Group Project
Initiative Problem Solving Activities

As you begin the group process of planning your project you have been charged with having at least one “out-of-class” meeting to discuss and plan this project. Follow the guidelines below:

1. At your meeting, you must draw up a brief report on the progress of your meeting. The report should include:
   − the date and time of your “out of class” meeting along with the signatures of the attending group members
   − a list of activities (games, initiative)
   − the date that you will present these activities
   − an outline of who will perform what roles during the presentation of activities (who will brief, who will lead, who will debrief, etc)
     - use debriefing and interpersonal skills handout to guide how you’ll debrief the activity
   − a list of needed materials, space, etc.
   − a copy of your instructional plan (brief-lead-debrief) to be turned in on the day of your presentation.

2. During your meeting(s), you should focus on the group skills that we’ve discussed in class. Use them as the norms to guide behavior in your group.
   − All group members are involved.
   − Listen to one another’s ideas.
   − Full Value Commitment to the project.

3. Your report for the project is due on the date that you will present (see #1 above). You must sign up for your group’s activities long before you actually lead the planned activities. Sign up sheet is posted on my door. Put the group member’s names and all of the activities that you will lead. There shall be no duplicate activities.
